ECAWA 2010 State Conference
Wednesday the 29th and Thursday the 30th of September
Canning College, Marquis Street, Bentley

We invite you to join us at the ECAWA 2010 State Conference for two days of professional learning and professional development opportunities, networking and sharing of information about ICT in education in a relaxed and friendly environment at Canning College in Bentley.

The ECAWA 2010 State Conference has again been planned to be as easy as possible on both budgets and the environment. However, while we have cut out some ‘frills’ to make this a most affordable conference, the standard of presentations, presenters and speakers is as high as ever. In fact we are continuing in our tradition of trying to make this year’s conference the best yet, and we are confident that the ECAWA 2010 State Conference really is the best value event that you’ll be offered in 2010.

ECAWA – Still Lifting Standards—Lowering Costs

Programme
The programme will incorporate keynote addresses as well as concurrent presentations and workshops. Strands within the programme will focus on the senior secondary courses Applied Information Technology and Computer Science, as well as the integration of Information and Communications Technology in the Primary and Middle School classroom, including:

- The continuing development of our understanding of 21st Century educational attitudes, skills and use of learning technologies.
- Exploring the use of ICT to enhance and maximise student learning opportunities through student centred curriculum based projects
- Facilitating learning through innovative and achievable ICT strategies
- Investigating the opportunities and challenges of Web 2.0 + Technologies
- Exploring new media and new and emerging technologies.
- Practical classroom ideas from experienced educators

See some of the latest software and equipment, and share tips for using it in the classroom.

The concurrent presentations and workshops allow participants to choose from a ‘hands on’ style workshop, sessions designed for Primary, Middle School and Secondary based teachers, as well as presentations on topics of special interest school to those in leadership. The Senior Secondary computing courses are well covered with presentations throughout the programme.

The Scitech Techno Truck will be a special feature of the Conference, with teachers having plenty of time over the two days to enjoy a taste of the excitement their students will experience as they learn about robotics and new media.

Make sure that you are part of this event that offers WA educators the best of international, national and our own Western Australian presenters each year.

Full details of the programme and the Conference are available from ECAWeb at www.ecawa.wa.edu.au or email conference@ecawa.wa.edu.au or call 08 9450 0618 or 0411 241 261

Keynote Speaker: Professor Sasha Barab
Sasha Barab dropped out from school … but is now a Professor at Indiana University USA. His journey between has taken him to many roles in many countries and it colours his interest in developing and using games in education.

Professor Sasha Barab’s opening keynote address at the ECAWA 2010 State Conference is entitled:

Videogames and Transformational Play: Learning in the 21st Century

In his keynote address Sasha Barab will discuss a design methodology that his team has used to support powerful learning and engagement as they fostered a sense of dramatic agency as part of the learning experience. More than a theoretical discussion, Sasha will ground these ideas in his team’s work on the Quest Atlantis project where they have created numerous curricular designs to support transformational play in which players take on the role of scientists, reporters, accountants, etc and who use academic content to resolve problematic fictional storylines that unfold in virtual worlds.

Be at Canning College by 9am on Wednesday the 29th of September for the Opening Keynote Address of the ECAWA 2010 State Conference to hear what Sasha Barak has been doing with serious games.

Keynote Speaker: Mr Greg Gebhart
Greg Gebhart will highlight the technological world that children live in, the risks to which they are exposed and the opportunities for pastoral care and welfare that enable teachers to make a critical difference to children’s well being.

In his keynote address

Cybersafety in Schools – Creating Digital Citizens

Greg will consider how children are fully immersed in technology, from mobile phones, iPods and iPads, to chat programs and social networking sites. In many cases, students are putting themselves at risk of cyberbullying, online strangers and the uploading of inappropriate content which will have a large impact on their current lifestyles and future employment.
